sausting Dr. Neely; bond to answer.

Pat. Dilly was bailed out of the cave.

Gec. Robinson sliss Lord Isaacs, for cutting a man by the name of John Copeland; discharged.

Michael Reitz, George Howard and Andy Hontzel, charged with burglary and stealing one silver watch, one coat, and one pair of pants from Owen Curr; bail of each in $500 to answer in Circuit Court.

Glasgow Bennett (f. m. c.), aiding slaves to escape from their owner; held to answer.

ANOTHER DARING ROBBERY—About 3 o'clock yesterday morning two thieves, who were disguised, entered the house of a widow lady on Broadway, searched every drawer and closet in the house without finding anything of value. They afterwards entered the bed room where the family were asleep, and removed from under the pillow of the lady her pocket book, which contained thirty-three dollars in "green-backs," ten dollars in specie and a small amount of currency. They took the money out of the pocket-book, after which they returned it, and the inmates of the house knew nothing of it until the next morning. This is one of the boldest and daring robberies that we have been called upon to chronicle for some time. That Louisville is infested with a gang of bold and reckless thieves cannot be denied, and our citizens should be on the look out for them and keep their houses closely fastened. Our police force is insufficient to protect our citizens against these villains, and the citizens will have to be prepared to protect themselves.

EXPLOSION OF FIRE-WORKS—We learn that on Friday evening a terrible explosion took place at the variety store on the corner of Center and Jefferson streets, which startled the whole neighborhood. Through some cause unknown, the fire-works in the shop exploded with a great noise. Rockets, serpents, Roman candles, and "Greek fire" flew out of the door and windows, completely balling description. This exhibition of fireworks, as might be expected, drew a large crowd, and in a short time the entire street was crowded with women and children, all inquiring what was the matter. We were unable to learn the loss incurred by the accident.

PROMOTION—Capt. P. Rowan Boone, Assistant Adjutant General on General Whitaker's staff, has been promoted for gallant conduct in the field to the Lieutenant-Colonelcy of the Twenty-eighth Kentucky regiment. Lieutenant-Colonel Boone is a resident of this city, and he may well feel proud of his promotion, as he has not yet reached his twenty-first year. He was with General Whitaker in all the late battles in the vicinity of Chattanooga, and on every occasion, by his gallantry, he won the highest praise of his general, and the admiration of the staunch fighting brigade.

FIRST ARRIVAL OF SUGAR AND MOLASSES DIRECT FROM NEW ORLEANS—The first lot of sugar and molasses direct by the river from New Orleans for this city since the blockade of the Mississippi was established by the rebels, arrived here Friday on the great steamer Atlantic. The Atlantic left New Orleans ten days ago. She has nobly won the honor of being the first lower river steamer to make the through trip to the falls of the Ohio.

MURDEROUS ASSAULT—Yesterday, about 4 o'clock, two ruffians made a murderous assault upon a soldier on Market, between Third and Fourth streets. As the soldier was walking quietly up the street the ruffians struck him in the face with brass knucks, inflicting a very serious though not dangerous wound. The fiends in human shape who made the assault succeeded in making their escape. We were unable to learn the name of the soldier.

Amusements

Wood's THEATER—Miss Matilda Heron, the distinguished actress, after delighting crowded audiences during the past week with her unrivaled delineation of Camille, will appear on Monday evening, in the part of Florence Upton, in her elegant play of "Belle of the Season." The date of the piece is the present day, and the action is supposed to take place in the city of New York.

We have never seen this production, but the press in its principal eastern cities speak loud in its praise; and we should judge from its success elsewhere that it cannot fail to attract large houses in Louisville. To add additional strength in the cast of this great play, the managers have engaged the services of Mr. W. M. Foster, a very popular and talented actor, who will appear in his original character of Prosper.

Court of Appeals

FRANKFORT, Dec. 24, 1863.

ORDERS.

Bright vs Lytle, Garrison, vs. W. T. Morris; d24 tf and C. D. Bush; both suspended, and remanded to the court of appeals.

CAUSES DECIDED.

The small pox is spreading at an alarming rate in the Indiana penitentiary, at Louisville. Ten cases are at present under treatment in the prison hospital.

For interesting reading matter, and for advertised list of letters, see fourth page this morning.

The following is a list of letters and descriptive lists remaining in the Medical Director's office, Louisville, Kentucky, for the week ending December 26th, 1863.

DECEASED SOLDIERS.—The following soldiers have died in the general hospitals in this city during the week ending last evening: S. Whittle, company H, Tenth Kentucky (rebel); J. K. Knight, company C, First Alabama (rebel); M. Staly, company E, Nineteenth Ohio; G. D. Rednor, company A, First East Tennessee; R. H. Maddin, company E, Tenth Tennessee (rebel); T. M. English, company K, First East Tennessee cavalry; J. B. Carter, company E, Ohio artillery; J. L. Saison, company G, Eighth Kentucky; G. D. McGillett, company B, Fifty-ninth Indiana; D. Dayfield, company H, Sixtieth Illinois; H. Sixtis Illinois; J. T. Walker, company A, First Ohio artillery; J. T. Depew, company K, Eighty-eighth Indiana; W. O. Miller, company K, Seventy-second Indiana; and H. Klaus, company F, Ninety-ninth Pennsylvania.

CHRISTMAS.—Friday was a most delightful day, and Christmas was generally observed throughout all the cities around the falls. The streets from early until night were crowded, and all seemed to enjoy themselves. Although a large number of persons were merry with liquor we heard of nothing to mar the happiness of the day. Upon the whole, we have seldom, if ever, observed a more happy and joyous Christmas than Friday, and it will long be remembered by people as one of the bright sunbeams reflecting its genial rays through the clouds which have enveloped us since the inauguration of the war.

MIDDLETON'S BEAUTIFUL PORTRAITS OF GEORGE WASHINGTON, MARTHA WASHINGTON, ANDREW JACKSON, HENRY CLAY AND DANIEL WEBSTER.—Mr. James Gillmore, agent for the sale of these beautiful portraits, is now canvassing the city for subscribers, who are real master pieces of art, and as the holidays are here, we think no appropriate present can be selected. Specimens of the pictures are now being addressed to Mr. Gillmore, P. O. box 918. No orders will be taken after the 1st of January, 1864, in the city. Thirty-eight pair were delivered on Friday, bought for Christmas presents.

A CISTERNS EXPLODED.—On Christmas day a number of young lads amused themselves by throwing shooting-crackers into the cisterns at the intersection of Grayson and Sixth streets. About one o'clock one of the crackers ignited the foul air or gas and a tremendous explosion followed, throwing the earth and stones in every direction. Fortunately none of the boys were injured, though all were badly scared.

BLACK GLASSWARE.—We direct the attention of dealers to the advertisement of Mr. John Arbogast, of the Iron City Glass Works. This manufacturing establishment can furnish everything in its line as cheap as the same can be purchased anywhere in the United States. Read advertisement for particulars.

INQUEST NO. 164—Held December 24th, 1863, on Eighteenth street, near Broadway, on the body of Ann Pettit, aged 27 years. Verdict—"Came to her death at sometime of the night of the 24th of December, 1863, from the effects of intemperance and self-abuse." J. C. Gill, Coroner.

WE learn that a party of armed guerrillas went to the house of Wesley B. Cook, near Bigdad, in Shelby county, a few nights ago, and called to him to come out, and fired several rounds at him, one taking effect in his neck, wounding him dangerously, perhaps fatally.

THE ladies' fair at Jeffersonville, for the benefit of the Methodist church in that place, closed Friday evening. We are informed that the net proceeds will amount to about $400. It was well attended, and reflects great credit upon the ladies who had the management of it.

THE largest and best stock of boys' and youths' clothing in Louisville, at Scott, Keen & Co.'s, corner Sixth and Main.

CINCINNATI, December 4, 1863.

I hereby certify that in accordance with the law regulating the sale of alcoholic liquors in the State of Ohio, I have inspected and approved the premises of Wm. W. Smith, sold by John D. Park, Cincinnati, Ohio, and find no bitters free from deleterious impurities. It is a vegetable tincture, containing about twenty-five per cent. of spirits, and possesses medicinal properties tonic, astrigent and aromatic in character.

In testimony whereof my signature this 5th day of December.

Engagement on the Rappahannock.
Centerville Heights Abandoned.

Meade's Army on the Advance.

[Special to the Louisville Journal.]

WASHINGTON, December 25.—We have reports of a considerable fire on the Rappahannock to-day, but no particulars have been received.

The movement once contemplated of occupying the heights at Centerville for the winter has been given up by Gen. Meade, and he is advancing to a position forward of that he has been holding determined on.

To accomplish this one corps was pushed toward the Rappahannock to-day, which movement was undoubtedly brought about a cold snap.

Some members of Congress remain here over the holidays, working in the committee rooms.

The Committee of Ways and Means are at variance on petroleum, a portion favoring the heavy tax, while others resist.

How to Read Gas Meters.

Complaints are frequently made of the extraordinary rates charged for gas by different companies, and instances can be cited where some of these charges are entirely beyond reason. The process of reading the meter is simple and easily learned from the instructions; and if housekeepers would take the trouble to do this, they would be sure to gain.

At the top of the meter is placed a small thin case, three or four inches long, which opens by means of a little door in front, which exhibits a plate with three small dials, about an inch in diameter, each with a pointer and a pointer spike, moved by cog-wheels and pinions on the inside, which in turn are made to revolve by a large wheel propelled by the passage of the gas. The circle of the dial is divided into ten equal parts, and each part is divided into five smaller divisions, indicating the equivalent of the dial of a clock.

The dial on the extreme right indicates, by means of its pointer, the burning of one hundred feet of gas, the middle one the thousand feet, and the other the burning of ten thousand feet.

For instance, the three pointers all stand at the cipher. The pointer on the right hand dial having moved from the cipher to figure 1, indicates that one thousand feet of gas has been consumed. If it moves to 2, two hundred feet, and so on until the pointer reaches the cipher, and again reaches the cipher, when one thousand feet has been consumed.

When this point has been reached, the eye will be directed to the next dial, which shows that the pointer has moved to the figure 1, indicating that one thousand feet has been used.

The pointer on the first dial still moves on, marking the amount consumed. Suppose that at the end of the first month the pointer stands at 1, and at 2, and so on, it is easy to understand that 1,800 feet have been consumed.

When the pointer on the second dial reaches the cipher again, it shows that 10,000 feet have been used, and the pointer then or dial 3, which is the leftmost, stands at 1. This in turn, with an entire revolution, indicates 100,000 feet consumed. Taking the three dials in connection, the exact amount in cubic feet may thus be ascertained, commencing anew every time the meter has run through the cipher and been consumed.

Now, to ascertain the exact amount of gas which will be consumed in a house during the month, inspect the dials of the meter on the first of the month. The pointer on the leftmost dial, which stands between the figures 6 and 7, indicates 60,000 feet. The dial on the middle dial may stand 5 and 6, indicating 5,000 feet, and the right hand dial stands between 7 and 8, indicating 700 feet.

Thus you have a total of sixty-five thousand and seven hundred feet of gas previously consumed. Note these figures, and at the end of every month inspect the dials. The right hand dial, perhaps, has not moved, indicating sixty thousand feet, before the middle one may now stand between seven and eight, indicating 7,000 feet. The right hand dial makes a number of revolutions and now stands between one and two, indicating one hundred feet. Now we have sixty-seven thousand. Subtract from this the number set down at the beginning of the month, and you have one thousand four hundred feet of gas consumed. Multiply this by the price per cubic foot, and you have your gas bill for the month.

The Arts in Japan.

"A Traveller," in a letter to the London Times, says:

I can assure you, if we go to war with the Chinese, we must not blind ourselves with the belief that we shall have a second Chinese affair. They are bold, courageous, proud, and eager after every kind of knowledge. A friend of mine gave a workman a Bramble lock to put on his door, but was not discovered, nor was some time afterward, only by chance, did the workman notice that the lock had been imitated, and, as the workman confessed, the original kept as a pattern. I have been on board a steamer (paddle) which had been in service for years, and between Nagasaki and Jeddah, six hundred miles, whose engines and boilers, and every part of her machinery, were made of copper. She was built by a doctor in Jeddah, whose only guide was a Dutch description of a steam gunnery officer who was sent over in 1839, in the Pophatian, to teach them gunnery. He was courteously received, and then taken over to the arsenal at Jeddah. He returned to the ship, and was taught a lesson in the science of having to teach.

In many of the arts and manufactures they excel us; their beautiful castings in bronze would puzzle the most experienced European workmen; who have shown specimens to clever workmen, who have often said, that could not imitate them. Though they do not know how to blow glass, I have seen samples which rival in brilliancy any made in England. The French Minister had a large hall, so clear and of such perfect color, that he believed it to be a copy of the Hall of Mirrors at Versailles, though it was round sum. Their paper imitations of leather are perfect; their paper waterproof coats are bought by the captains of their exposed boats crews; their own clocks are good, and those who have seen them, say, that they are about with "pedometers" attached to their belts, and they are not backward in copperplate engraving and perspective. Their china is far superior to the Chinese. The country goes with iron, though they only use that, a sort of bituminous iron, is good and strong and silver I believe they could rival Mexico and Australia; iron, copper and tin are found in profusion. A friend of mine at Yokohama, Japan, has a sample of English cotton shirtings in a few days, the size of which is two pieces, and my friend had much difficulty in saying which was his, so closely had it been imitated. In fact, they are a people who want for nothing, but teachers.
